

words have begun to fail me
the bigger
my heart
blooms

They
told
me
last
year.

...and...

so
what?

We've been married
for 10 years,
known each other for 20 years
we've got 2 kids

My Partner is TRANS

I didn't put my name on this
as not to out my partner before
they're ready.

maybe I had to educate myself on
pronouns and genders
and come out from under a rock.

maybe I was scared that
that was code for
my marriage was about to dissolve.

yeah.
maybe I was a
little shaken when they told me.

It can be a lonely
experience when your partner comes out as trans and you don't want to out them.

The internet can be a scary place to look for information. So far, I've found the sub Reddit
r/my partner is trans
to have a community of people in loving relationships which has been beautiful and supportive.

This is a
Happily
Ever
After
Zine

maybe I was scared
they didn't want to be with me anymore.

maybe I had to learn how to talk about my own fears with compassion.

Maybe there was nothing to be afraid of.
